SURVIVOR JAMES HELPING BABIES WITH HEART ABNORMALITIES

My heart stopped when I was being born. Literally.

The doctors gave me CPR in the first moment of my life.

That's quite a welcome to the world.

I was just 36 hours old when I underwent open-heart surgery.

At 11 weeks old I needed an operation. It was then that I had a stroke.

They said I would never walk, talk or see.

They were wrong. As you can see.

Thank you, BHF.

Thank you, supporters of the BHF.

In the 1950s before the BHF, only one in five babies who were born with a congenital heart problem lived beyond their first year.

Now, thanks to the development of life-saving techniques, supported by the BHF, 80 per cent of babies, like James, get to grow up.
